THE ISLAND · PAŠMAN CHANNEL, CROATIA

One Island, One Group

Mala Bisaga is a 1.8-hectare private island in the Pašman Channel, immediately beside the heart-shaped island of Galešnjak — olive groves, maritime pines and dry-stone walls above a rocky shore.

For generations the island was one family's private estate. Today it opens, by invitation, to a small number of guests each year — the whole island, let to a single group at a time, twelve minutes by boat from the mainland.

STAY

One Residence, Three Bedrooms

The residence was built slowly, in local limestone and weathered oak, and unfolds room by room — a living heart, a master suite, and two guest bedrooms, one of them in its own timber house above the water.

THE ROOMS

Master Suite	king bed · marble ensuite
Guest Bedroom	queen bed · ensuite
Sea View Bedroom	twin beds · its own house
Living Room	lounge · dining for eight
Capacity	7 guests · one group only

Full-height glazing slides away to the terrace, and every bedroom has its own ensuite — the master's carved in book-matched marble, with a rainfall shower and dual vanity.

LIFE ON THE ISLAND

Life on the Island

THE TABLE

A dedicated island chef composes menus in the moment, from the local catch and the garden. Meals move outdoors — long lunches and candlelit dinners by the stone grill, beneath the pines.

THE WATER

The island's private vessel and skipper are on demand throughout a stay — the crossing, days out in the channel, evenings in Zadar. On the island, the infinity pool and jacuzzi hang above the sea.

THE DAYS

Terraces with soft seating and shaded corners sit outside the suites, and the groves and shore points take the quiet hours. After sunset the island is softly lit under starlit skies.

THE REGION · DALMATIAN COAST

The Channel and Beyond

The Pašman Channel runs between the island of Pašman and the mainland shore — a sheltered sailing ground of clear water, small towns and wooded islands, in the middle of the Dalmatian Coast.

Galešnjak, the heart-shaped island next door, is uninhabited and protected. The Kornati archipelago lies thirty to forty minutes away by boat, Krka's waterfalls stand in ancient forest on the mainland, and Zadar's Roman and Venetian old town is thirty-five minutes away.

GETTING THERE

A Short Crossing

ZAD

ZADAR — THE GATEWAY

Zadar, the nearest city, is thirty-five minutes from the mainland jetty — a coastal city of Roman and Venetian memory, with the airport that serves this stretch of the Dalmatian Coast.

12 MIN

THE CROSSING TO THE ISLAND

The island's skipper waits at the mainland jetty. Twelve minutes across the channel and you step ashore — by the time the mainland fades behind the wake, you are somewhere else entirely.

ON DEMAND

THE ISLAND'S OWN VESSEL

The private boat and skipper stay at the group's disposal throughout the stay — for Zadar at dusk, for the Kornati islands, or simply for another cove.

The island is let by appointment, to a small number of guests each year. The concierge answers personally, usually within the day.

THE ISLAND ITSELF

Stone, Pine and Olive

THE GROVES

Olives and maritime pines shade the island, held in by dry-stone walls the family built and kept. Stone paths run between the residence, the pool terrace and the shore — the whole estate is a few minutes' walk.

THE SHORE

The shoreline is natural rock, with bathing points cut into it and the island's jetty on the sheltered side. The water is the clear Adriatic of the channel — visibility to twenty-five metres on a calm day.

AFTER DARK

As the sun sets, the island becomes a glowing world of soft light and starlit silence — the operator's own words for it are 'night-time magic', and the mainland lights stay far across the water.

THE SHORT VERSION

Held quietly by one family for generations — the stillness is the point.

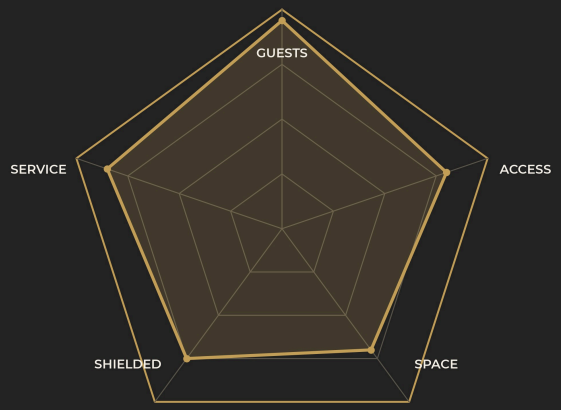
WHOLE ISLAND

MALA BISAGA · PRIVACY INDEX / 100



Gold fill — Whole Island: the whole property, one group only.

MALA BISAGA

WHO ELSE IS THERE — 19 / 20

The whole island is let to one group at a time — up to seven guests — and opens to only a small number of guests each year. The only other people are the island's own host and skipper.

WHO CAN GET IN — 16 / 20

Boat-only access, on the island's own vessel with its skipper, twelve minutes from the mainland — but the Pašman Channel is a sailing ground, and boats anchor in its bays.

SPACE TO DISAPPEAR — 14 / 20

The island's honest limit: 1.8 hectares. Two houses, a pool terrace, groves and shore points spread seven guests well — but everything is within a few minutes' walk.

OUT OF SIGHT, SOUND & TRAFFIC — 15 / 20

Pines, olives and dry-stone walls screen the residence, and the neighbour island is uninhabited — but the mainland shore is in view across the channel, and its lights show after dark.

INVISIBLE SERVICE — 17 / 20

A small team — island host, skipper, a dedicated chef — runs the island around the group: present when wanted, and otherwise out of the picture.
