REGION — MAINE — THE PENOBSCOT

Maine island land sells in freehold, outright title, and foreign buyers hold the same rights as locals, with the Coastal Island Registry backing title certainty. The Penobscot at Medway is Katahdin country: big forest, flat ponded water, and few neighbours.

THE ISLAND

A Peninsula Turned Island

Faith Island began as a peninsula on the Penobscot River and became a fully detached island when the Mattaseunk Hydroelectric Dam ponded the river at Medway. At 150 acres it is one of the most expansive freshwater island holdings in the region, a single freehold landmass wrapped in forest and quiet water.

THE LAND

Forest Above the River

The island rises gently from gentle banks and hidden coves to a wooded plateau some thirty feet above the river, its interior a deep Maine forest of mixed hardwood and softwood crossed by trails. Building sites look out over the ponded reach toward the hills of the Katahdin region.

WHAT STANDS

A Four-Bedroom Camp

A charming four-bedroom, two-bathroom wilderness camp serves as a comfortable base for seasonal recreation and multi-generational stays, with a wood-lined great room, a screened porch and room to expand, redesign or reimagine a larger compound plan over time.

THE POWER

Mainland Power, Island Privacy

The camp runs on reliable mainland electricity delivered by a heavy-duty underwater conduit installed in 2013, a rare piece of infrastructure for a river island. High-capacity service is already active on site, ready for whatever a new owner builds next.

LAND AND WATER

Held by the River

Bounded entirely by the historic waters of the Penobscot River, Faith Island carries extensive and diverse frontage: sheltered coves and gentle banks that make boat launching easy and mooring secure. The ponded reach above the dam runs flat and calm, a lake-like stretch of river that buffers the island on every side while keeping the mainland close.

KNOWN FOR

A 150-acre historic river island at Medway: Penobscot Nation hunting and fishing ground, lumber-era landmark, and now a freehold camp island with mainland power.

DAYTIME HIGH ±78°F · NIGHT LOW ±5°F

BY WATER

A Short, Scenic Boat Ride

The listing is plain about the arrival: a short, scenic boat ride from the mainland, across flat ponded water to the island's sheltered coves. Provisions and regional services stay within reach in every season, with Medway, the mainland town at the forks of the Penobscot, five miles away.

BY ROAD AND AIR

Medway & the Katahdin Gateway

East Millinocket lies six miles north-west and Millinocket, gateway town to Baxter State Park and Mount Katahdin, beyond it. Millinocket Municipal Airport is twelve miles straight-line; Bangor International Airport serves the region from the south.
