THE ISLAND

Four Acres of Cay

Cabañas on Clark's Cay is a four-acre island oasis on the south side of Guanaja, in Honduras' Bay Islands. It began as a private island; the current owner bought it in 2017, renovated it — building the waterpark that year — and reopened it to guests in early 2018.

Everything is close: the cabanas, the pool and lazy river, the restaurant and the dive dock all sit within a few minutes' walk on the cay, and the fringing reef — a protected marine reserve on the Mesoamerican Barrier Reef — is reached from every shoreline.

STAY

Fourteen Cabañas

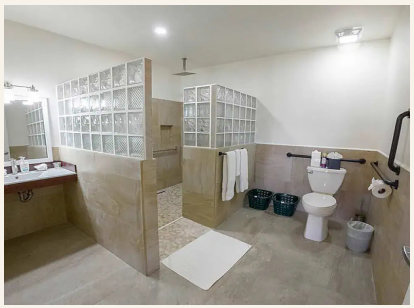

Fourteen cabanas sleep up to 28 guests. The eight Deluxe Cabañas are duplexes with wrap-around porches, close to the pool and restaurant or facing the mainland across the water; the two One-Bedroom Suites add a separate living area — Cabaña Sol faces the sunset, Cabaña Playa the sunrise.

THE CABAÑAS

Deluxe Cabañas · eight	260 sq ft · two guests
One-Bedroom Suites · two	500 sq ft · up to three guests
ADA Family Cabañas · four	476 sq ft · up to three guests

New for 2026, the four ADA Family Cabañas are all ground-level, with wide doorways, roll-in showers, grab bars and kitchenettes. Every cabana is air-conditioned with a private bathroom; housekeeping is daily and laundry is complimentary.

LIFE ON THE ISLAND

Built Around the Water

DINING

Three meals a day plus a happy-hour snack, served at Cantina Rio — open-air and oceanfront, beside the lazy river — or indoors at La Casita when the weather turns. The chef works from a blackboard menu and prepares alternatives on request; dietary needs are gathered before you arrive. Stays are all-inclusive, with local beer, house wine and well spirits at the bar.

THE WATERPARK

The island's own waterpark: an infinity pool and hot tub, and a waterslide that drops into a meandering lazy river with a tunnel and a waterfall, plus a water trampoline. Since the 2026 accessibility build-out, lifts serve the lazy river, the pool and the hot tub, and paved paths and ramps run across the cay.

DIVING

A NAUI Platinum Pro Dive Center with PADI instructors too, and true concierge service — the team loads, prepares, swaps, rinses and stores your gear every day. Three boats run three dives daily, Sunday to Thursday, across more than fifty rarely visited sites: walls, lava tunnels, swim-throughs and the Jado Trader wreck.

THE REGION

The Reef That Provides

Guanaja's fringing reef is part of the Mesoamerican Barrier Reef, the largest reef system in the Americas, and it is a protected marine reserve — the island sits on Bonacca Ridge, and reef is reached from all of its coastlines. It is why the diving here is on some of the Caribbean's most untouched reef.

The resort works to keep it that way. It is a REEF.org Conservation Partner: guides carry pole spears for lionfish on nearly every dive, and the catch is served by the chef. The island co-established the Guanaja marine park with the municipality, helps maintain a mooring-buoy system of some forty to fifty moorings, and stocks Guanaja's first Library and Learning Center in Bonacca, the town across the water. Clark's Cay is the sister property of Villa on Dunbar Rock, the villa resort on a rock cay nearby — the two share a management team and a fleet of three dive boats.

GETTING THERE

Through Roatán, Then By Boat

ROATÁN

THE GATEWAY (RTB)

Every journey starts on Roatán, which takes direct flights from Miami, Atlanta and Houston. Arrive by 2:00 pm to make the Saturday connection; a baggage handler meets you at the carousel, and the resort arranges the transfer to the ferry terminal.

1½ HOURS

THE SATURDAY FERRY

The Galaxy Wave ferry leaves Roatán at 4:00 pm on Saturdays and crosses to Bonacca, Guanaja's town on its own cay. Island staff meet you at the gangplank and bring you the last fifteen minutes by boat to Clark's Cay.

10 MINUTES

CHARTER TO GUANAJA

There are no scheduled flights to Guanaja, but charter aircraft — a small single-engine or a twin-engine turboprop for groups — land at Guanaja airport, where the island's boat covers the final ten minutes.

The final boat leg — from the ferry dock or Guanaja airport — is included in every rate. The ferry and charter flights themselves are not; Saturday-to-Saturday is the norm, and other arrival days need a charter flight.

DRY SEASON · FEB–MAY	82–84°F / 28–29°C	72–74°F / 22–23°C	81–83°F / 27–28°C	The driest months — steady trade winds, calm seas and the classic Bay Islands spring
SUMMER · JUN–AUG	84°F / 29°C	75°F / 24°C	84°F / 29°C	Warm and settled; the water is at its most inviting for long dive days
PEAK WARMTH · SEP–OCT	85°F / 29°C	75°F / 24°C	85°F / 29°C	The warmest weeks of the year — mid-September is the hottest spell, on land and in the sea
WET SEASON · NOV–JAN	79–81°F / 26–27°C	70–72°F / 21–22°C	80–81°F / 27°C	The rains arrive and the nights cool — late January brings the coolest nights of the year

THE SHORT VERSION

Figures are the climate normals for Guanaja (WeatherSpark). The cay shares the island's pattern: daytime air runs 79–85°F across the year and the sea 80–85°F — warm enough to dive in a short wetsuit in every month, with the seasons turning on rain and wind.

ACCESS

Fly into Roatán (RTB) — direct flights from Miami, Atlanta and Houston. Arrive by 2:00 pm for the Saturday connection.

The Galaxy Wave ferry leaves Roatán at 4:00 pm on Saturdays, reaching Bonacca in about 1½ hours; island staff meet you for the 15-minute boat ride to the cay.

Or charter a flight to Guanaja (GJA) — there is no scheduled service — and the island boat covers the last 10 minutes. The final boat leg is included in every rate.

RESORT STAY · PRIVACY INDEX / 100

64

PRIVATE BUT CONNECTED

WHOLE ISLAND · PRIVACY INDEX / 100

79

Gold fill — whole-island rental. Dashed outline — resort stay.

	RESORT	WHOLE
WHO ELSE IS THERE	10 / 20	20 / 20

Resort stay — up to 28 guests in 14 cabanas share the cay, with almost as many staff; a divers' resort, sociable by design.
Whole island — one group only: your party of up to 28 has all 14 cabanas and the whole cay.

WHO CAN GET IN	16 / 20	17 / 20

Resort stay — no road and no scheduled flight: guests arrive by the resort's own boat from the Bonacca ferry dock or Guanaja airport.
Whole island — the same boat-only arrival, run for your group alone.

SPACE TO DISAPPEAR	10 / 20	12 / 20

Resort stay — four acres for up to 28 guests is cosy rather than spacious; the cabanas spread around the pool, the beaches and the gardens.
Whole island — the same four acres, but every beach, path and corner of it is yours alone.

OUT OF SIGHT, SOUND & TRAFFIC	13 / 20	13 / 20

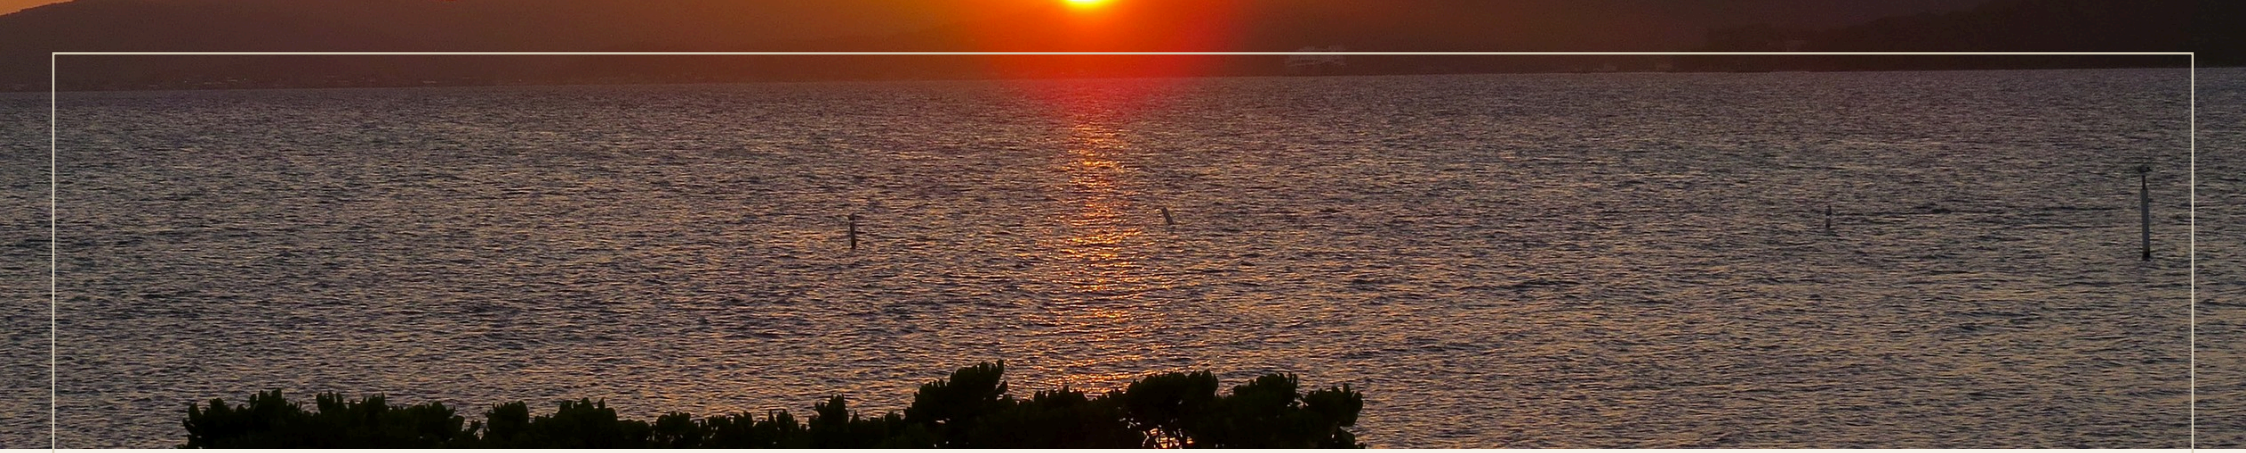

Resort stay — Bonacca town and Guanaja's green shore lie across the water; dive boats and the ferry pass the cay.
Whole island — a rental changes who is ashore, not the outlook: the same near neighbours across the channel.

INVISIBLE SERVICE	15 / 20	17 / 20

Resort stay — daily housekeeping, complimentary laundry, and dive gear loaded, rinsed and set up for you.
Whole island — full staff for your group alone; diving and premium liquor are add-ons.
