One Island, One Resort

Vomo is an 87-hectare (225-acre) private island in Fiji's Mamanuca group, at the cusp of the Yasawa chain — a high, green island with Mt Vomo on its eastern side and beaches along both its shores.

It carries one resort and nothing else. Beside it sits tiny Vomo Lailai, kept for picnics and given over to a single party at a time; all around the island runs its house reef, and beyond the reef, the open Pacific.

Villas & Private Residences

Thirty-four villas stand along the beaches and in the gardens — Beachfront Villas on the sand, Hillside Villas looking out over the island, and family retreats and havens sleeping up to five.

THE STAYS

Beachfront Villas	14 · up to 4 guests
Hillside Villas	7 · up to 3 guests
Family villas & retreats	13 · up to 5 guests
Private residences	7 · three to five bedrooms
The Reef House	5 bedrooms · 100 m of beachfront

The seven residences are houses in their own right — three and four bedrooms sleeping six or eight, each with personal butler service written into its rate. The Reef House is the largest: five bedrooms along 100 metres of north-shore beachfront, its butler on hand from 7am to 11pm.

LIFE ON THE ISLAND

Life on the Island

THE TABLE

The Vuda Bar and Restaurant is the island's main table. At the western tip, The Rocks Bar & Restaurant is adults-only, with an Asia-Pacific menu and its own pool; residences can dine at home, and picnics are taken across to Vomo Lailai.

THE WATER

The house reef starts at the sand — an escorted Snorkel Safari runs over it, and the PADI 5 Star dive centre (Ocean Play) works the reefs beyond. Ashore there is a nine-hole par-3 golf course, tennis, a gym and Kui Spa, the island's spa.

THE FAMILY

The Kids Village opens from 8am to 9pm with complimentary care for three- to twelve-year-olds, and Baby Butlers give every family up to four hours of care a day. On Wednesdays the island gathers for the Managers Cocktail Party, the Meke show and the lovo feast.

THE REGION · WESTERN FIJI

Where the Mamanucas Meet the Yasawas

Vomo stands at the northern edge of the Mamanuca group, the chain of low islands scattered off Fiji's main island, Viti Levu — the point where the Mamanucas give way to the Yasawa chain running north.

Around the island the water is the region in miniature: house reef, open channels, and the silhouettes of neighbouring islands on the horizon. The mainland gate is close — Vuda Point and Denarau marinas and Nadi's international airport all lie within about an hour of the island's jetty.

GETTING THERE

An Hour from the Airport

15 MIN

BY HELICOPTER

From Nadi International Airport or Denarau, helicopters cross to the island in about fifteen minutes, flying in daylight with up to six passengers.

~1 HR

BY SPEEDBOAT

A twenty-minute drive from the airport to Vuda Point Marina, then the chartered speedboat — about thirty-five minutes on the water. Most guests are on the island an hour after landing.

75 MIN

BY FERRY

The scheduled catamaran leaves Denarau Marina in the morning and crosses in about seventy-five minutes; the resort's own boat meets it for the last short hop to the island.

Boat charters run from 5am to 9pm, and the helicopter flies in daylight. Check-in is at 2pm and check-out at 11am.

THE REEF

The Reef & The Gene Bank

THE HOUSE REEF

The reef begins at the sand and rings the island. Guests snorkel it on an escorted Safari, dive it with the island's PADI 5 Star centre, and can join the resident marine biologist on a complimentary snorkel tour of the Gene Bank.

COUNTING CORAL

With Counting Coral, Vomo hosts a Sculptural Coral Gene Bank, installed in 2024 — more than a thousand heat-resilient coral fragments banked by 2025. The nursery's fragments run at 95 percent survival, with outplanting to begin from early 2027.

THE FOOTPRINT

The island bottles its own water, cleans without chemicals, recycles its greywater and grows part of what it serves. A bio-digester takes up to 900 kilograms of food waste a day, and recycling returns to the mainland with Fiji's recyclers.

THE SHORT VERSION

A working reef, a coral gene bank and an island run to leave as little behind as possible.

WHO ELSE IS THERE

19 HIRE · 11 RESORT

Forty-one keys and never more than 189 guests, sharing two restaurants and the island's beaches. Taken whole, the island holds one party and its staff — nobody else.

WHO CAN GET IN

18 HIRE · 15 RESORT

Every arrival is a guest or staff transfer — chartered speedboat or helicopter, or the scheduled Denarau ferry the resort meets. No public access, no day trade.

SPACE TO DISAPPEAR

19 HIRE · 13 RESORT

225 acres for at most 189 guests: villas along beaches on both shores, residences on long private beachfronts, and the Mt Vomo trails above it all.

OUT OF SIGHT, SOUND & TRAFFIC

15 HIRE · 14 RESORT

Open ocean on every side — the nearest land is the Mamanuca chain and the mainland ranges some fifteen miles east. Boats and helicopters come and go by day.

INVISIBLE SERVICE

17 HIRE · 16 RESORT

Butlers in the residences, Baby Butlers for families, dinners served in residence or on a deserted islet — service that arrives when wanted, withdraws when not.
