The Family Island

Plantation Island Resort spreads across 23 acres of gardens on Malolo Lailai, a 553-acre island in Fiji's Mamanuca group, 16 kilometres offshore west of Nadi — shared with two neighbouring resorts, a marina and an airstrip.

Fiji's classic family resort: days that start on a waterslide and end with a torch-lighting ceremony, white beach around the bay, four pools and a golf course behind it.

STAY

Rooms & Bures

Six room types run from garden rooms to two-bedroom bures — on the beachfront, beside the pools and in the gardens behind. All face the island, not a screen: the rooms are kept deliberately free of televisions and radios.

THE ROOMS

Beachfront Bure	lagoon shore · sleeps five
Beachfront Hotel Room	balcony or patio · sleeps four
Two Bedroom Garden Bure	two bedrooms · sleeps six
Studio Garden Bure	queen + sofa beds · sleeps five
Poolside Room	poolside · sleeps five
Garden Room	garden setting · sleeps five

Every room has air conditioning, ceiling fans, tea and coffee making facilities and a fridge. Children under 12 stay free in existing bedding, up to two per room, and eat free.

LIFE ON THE ISLAND

Life at the Resort

THE TABLE

Eight restaurants and bars cover the day: buffet breakfasts and theme nights at Copra on the sand, à la carte dinners at the Black Coral Grill and Tavola over the lagoon, poke bowls, milkshakes and coffee in between.

THE WATER

Four pools, including a kids' pool with its own waterslide, and the Jungle Water Park floating off the beach. Snorkelling gear, kayaks, paddleboards and Hobie Cats are complimentary; Subsurface Fiji dives daily.

THE ISLAND

The Coconut Kids Club is free for ages 4 to 12, with its own dining room and a crèche for the under-fives; older kids get the Lairo Club. Around it: golf, tennis, the Fijian Village and the Senibua Spa.

THE REGION · MAMANUCA ISLANDS · FIJI

The Mamanuca Islands

The Mamanucas are Fiji's postcard chain — a scatter of islands across the lagoon west of Nadi, close enough to reach by a 50-minute ferry and far enough to feel like another country. Malolo Lailai sits mid-group.

Malolo, the largest of the Mamanucas, lies just across the bay. This is Fiji's driest, sunniest corner — the west sits in Viti Levu's rain shadow, which is why the resorts gathered here, and day boats run between them all.

GETTING THERE

Fifty Minutes from the Marina

50 MIN

BY FERRY

The Malolo Cat high-speed ferry runs from Port Denarau Marina direct to the island jetty. Fares include the scheduled coach between Nadi Airport, the Nadi hotels and the marina when booked ahead.

3×

A DAY

Morning, midday and afternoon departures in each direction, year-round. Miss the last one and the island's private water taxi runs from Denarau around the clock.

10 MIN

BY AIR

Helicopter and fixed-wing charters land on the island's own airstrip, about ten minutes from Nadi. The resort's transfer desk arranges them; the marina next door takes private yachts.

Ferry times and charter options are published on the resort's transfers page; the desk confirms the right sailing against your flight.

THE REEF

Coral, Culture & Care

THE REEF CENTRE

Since 2018 the resort has partnered with Corals for Conservation, whose Coral Reef Research and Restoration Centre sits at the resort with resident marine biologists and nurseries of heat-resilient super corals.

BULA REEF

Just offshore, BULA Reef spells its name in living coral — at 15 by 8 metres the world's biggest underwater coral word display, a UNESCO-endorsed Reefs of Hope project. An underwater museum waits off the bures.

HANDS ON

Guests plant coral, build fish houses and tour the nurseries and the giant clam garden with the marine team. The Fijian Village runs daily cultural displays, and the resort matches guest community donations.

THE SHORT VERSION

Super corals in the nursery, clams in the shallows — and BULA spelled in coral offshore.

RESORT STAY

PLANTATION ISLAND RESORT · PRIVACY INDEX / 100

Gold fill — Resort Stay: rooms and bures let individually. One of three resorts sharing Malolo Lailai Island.

PLANTATION ISLAND RESORT

WHO ELSE IS THERE — 8 / 20

Six room types and several hundred guests at busy times, a kids' club running three sessions a day — this is Fiji's family resort, and it feels it.

WHO CAN GET IN — 11 / 20

An offshore island, but an open one: a public ferry lands three times a day, and the island is shared with two other resorts, a marina and an airstrip.

SPACE TO DISAPPEAR — 11 / 20

The resort's 23 acres are compact, but the island beyond them runs to 553 acres — beaches, a golf course and tracks where a guest can walk away from the crowd.

OUT OF SIGHT, SOUND & TRAFFIC — 10 / 20

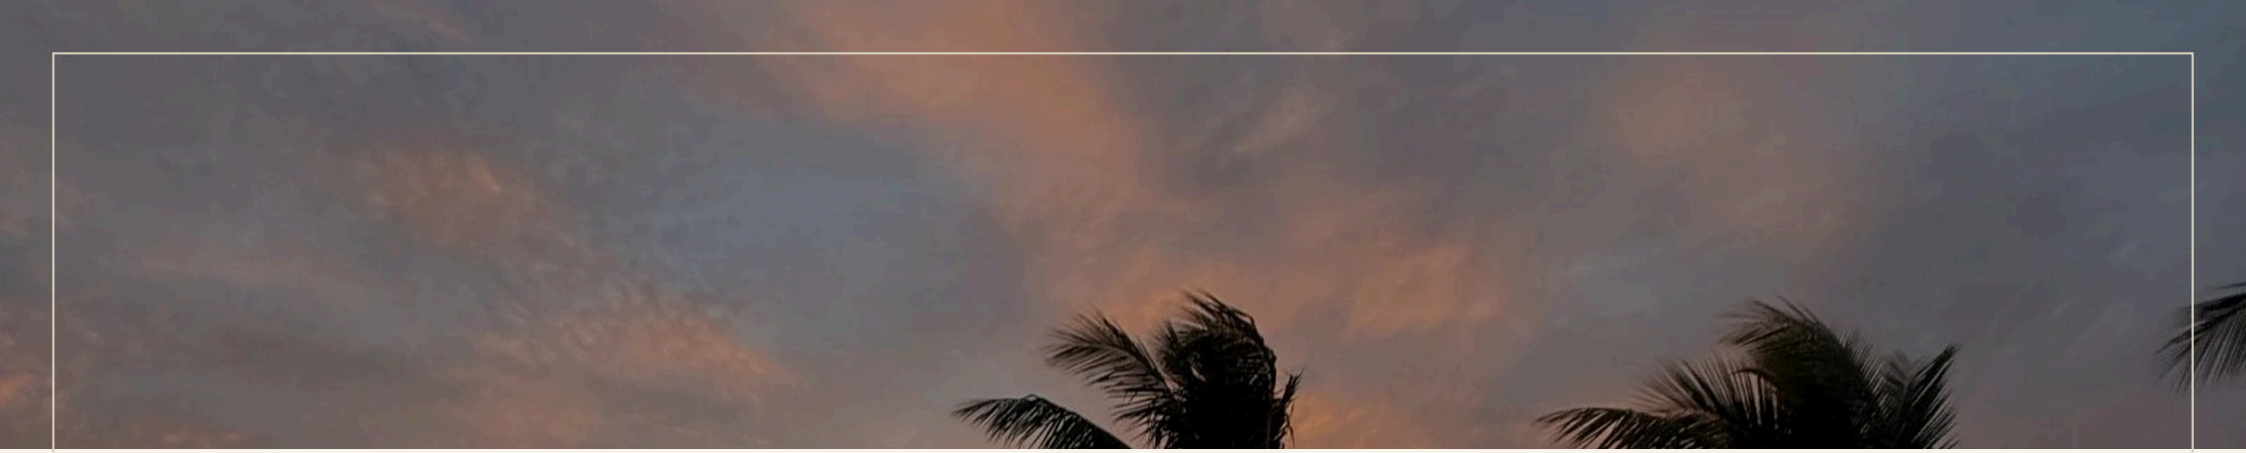

The bay in front is a working anchorage — yachts, the ferry jetty and the water park — though the outlook beyond is open ocean and empty horizon.

INVISIBLE SERVICE — 10 / 20

Warm, visible, activity-led service at family-resort scale: kids' club team, activities crew and buffet restaurants. Nothing is hidden, including the staff.
