Motu Tane

BORA BORA - FRENCH POLYNESIA - SOUTH PACIFIC

Motu Tane is an exclusive 10-acre private island just ten minutes by boat from Bora Bora's main island - the former personal retreat of François Nars, reimagined as a masterpiece of Polynesian design. Twenty-two traditional thatched-roof structures host two master suites, nine beach bungalows, and two guest suites, with interiors curated by renowned designer Christian Liaigre in rare tropical woods and natural fabrics. A 2,500-square-foot Great Room, a library of museum-quality Polynesian art, and a professional photography studio complete a fully furnished, turnkey sanctuary in one of the world's most desirable lagoons.

THE ISLAND

A Liaigre Masterpiece

Motu Tane sits enveloped in coconut groves and lush tropical foliage, ringed by pristine sandy beaches - oriented for the iconic view of Bora Bora's mountainous silhouette across the lagoon. Twenty-two traditional thatched-roof structures are scattered through the palms, blending traditional Polynesian architecture with modern sophistication.

PROVENANCE

Nars & Liaigre

Few islands carry this creative pedigree. François Nars made Motu Tane his personal retreat; Christian Liaigre dressed it - interiors of rare tropical woods and natural fabrics, every piece custom-crafted. The result is a refined sanctuary that feels collected over decades, delivered fully furnished and ready to live in.

RESIDENCES

Suites & Bungalows

The Two Master Suites each span 2,500 square feet - sunken lava bathtubs, dressing areas, and panoramic views. Nine independent beach bungalows and two guest suites host up to 20 guests in exceptional comfort. Motorized screens on the bungalows allow seamless indoor-outdoor living with protection in tropical weather.

ENTERTAINING

Great Room & Library

The social heart is a 2,500-square-foot Great Room, engineered for casual gatherings and formal entertaining alike. The adjacent dining area seats 36 at two custom-made tables, with a hidden wet bar. A library housing museum-quality Polynesian art, a professional photography studio, and a commercial-grade chef's kitchen complete the venue.

TERRAIN

Land and Water

The island is a study in South Pacific abundance: coconut groves and lush foliage over white sand, with every shoreline oriented toward the lagoon and the mountain beyond. Pristine sandy beaches ring the island; the surrounding waters are calm, clear, and protected. Two dedicated staff quarters keep the estate maintained to seamless service standards.

KNOWN FOR

Motu Tane is the Liaigre island - François Nars' former retreat with Christian Liaigre interiors, 22 thatched structures, and a library of museum-quality Polynesian art, ten minutes by boat from Bora Bora's main island.

ACCESS AND UTILITIES

Arrival in Minutes

Access is swift: a ten-minute boat transfer from the main island of Bora Bora, with a 50-minute domestic flight from Tahiti connecting the island to international routes. Two staff quarters ensure the estate runs to full service standards, discreetly.

LIFESTYLE AND VALUE

Estate or Destination

Whether held as a private family estate or operated as a high-end hospitality venue, Motu Tane offers unmatched privacy, cultural richness, and aesthetic perfection - a designer-curated asset in one of the world's most desirable maritime locations.

THE REGION

South Pacific, Freehold

Across the South Pacific, island ownership rules shift from country to country - Fiji, for example, reserves "Native" land for locals while selling freehold parcels to foreigners. In French Polynesia, Motu Tane is offered freehold: clean, outright title in one of the world's most photographed lagoons.
